sure whether he would prefer playing offense to defense.

"But you do seem to have a little more fun on defense," he said on second thought. "You get more of a chance to roam around."

As for that Little All-America again, the classification is according to size of the institution. Myhra is not little no matter how you look at him. He's 6-foot-1 and weighs 235 pounds.

He's one of the few National Football League players to throw his weight around both on offense and defense. He might even confuse the New York Giants by meeting them coming and going as well as scoring points on them.

BAYLOR IS STARRING

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Fishel, public relations director for the New York Yankees, went from the World Series to Europe for a four-week vacation with his mother, Mrs. O. J. Fishel. He visited London, Paris, Zurich, Rome, Madrid and Lisbon. His only connection with sports on the trip was as a spectator at a Madrid soccer game where 123,000 fans turned out for an exhibition. Bob paid $6 for his seat.

Snobakken Ski Slope Is Ready

WABASHA—Southeastern Minnesota skiing enthusiasts are being invited to test their skill on the steep new run added to Wabasha's "Snobakken" ski area this year.

Snobakken, located a mile west of Wabasha, was cleared by local skiers a year ago and many improvements were added during the past summer to make the area one of the finest within a wide radius.

Bulldozers cleared a whole new hillside during the summer to add the new run, known as "the headwall." It has 260 feet of vertical drop over 1,200 feet of hillside.

Skiers say the only hill to compare with it is Telemark near Cable, Wis. Another batch of snow is all that's needed to assure skiing fun.

A new tow will carry skiers 1,000 feet up the hill. Three stop-off spots have been built. One for beginners, a second for intermediates and the last goes to the top of the headwall for finished skiers.

The hills offer a variety of terrain and a fourth trail is being built through the woods. A new road through the Virgil Schurhammer farm provides easy access to the site.

The tow will be open Saturdays and Sundays from noon to 5 p.m. whenever snow is available. Persons interested in snow reports at Snobakken may call Leo Dick or John Peters at Wabasha.

Snobakken is operated by the Wabasha Ski Club, Inc. A nominal fee is charged for use of the tow.
