

BACKYARD SKIING—

There's no need for the James B. Palmquist Jr. family to take to the snow-covered highways to reach a snow-covered ski area. Northville Park, where they live, has its own ski hill with a rope tow of which Mr. Palmquist is volunteer head. Mrs. Palmquist and son, James B. III, applaud as 9-year-old Jeffrey gets out of a bit of trouble without taking a tumble. The Palmquists enjoy their friendly neighborhood all year around as there's skating, skiing and tobogganing in the winter and swimming in the community pool, baseball games and a playground area for summer fun.

REAL TOGETHERNESS— Mr. and Mrs. Don F. Rouse and their youngsters, Michael, left, and Deltha, pile onto a toboggan for a fast run down one of the many hills at Northville Park, where they live. The community activities are run on a co-operative basis, with all the neighbors pitching in to keep toboggan, ski and skating areas in good shape in the winter. The community clubhouse is a popular place for picnics and potlucks in warmer weather.
