

CORNELL LIONS CLUB

The Cornell Lions Club members have been busy with their new project which is the setting up of a ski tow for skiing at Baldy Mountain. The land is located seven miles North West of Cornell and is owned by Robert Kendall. A part of the North slope of the mountain will be used for skiing and tobogganing. The club members have also constructed a warming house and hot dog stand. The hill and tow will be ready for operations to begin next week end.
